Green open access is the norm for manuscript unless the author pays for a more open publication plan. You can use it in your dissertation and share it with individual colleagues any time after publication, with appropriate reference to its publication in BRN.

Hope that helps!

Hi!

Except I don't believe my article qualified for green open access or does it? It sounds like I can share it? But I wonder when that goes into effect?

Delia,

I think the information on Green Open Access at the Sage Publications Website will answer your questions. Please take a look here <https://us.sagepub.com/en-us/nam/journal-author-archiving-policies-and-re-use> and then let me know if you have further questions.

Thank you!

Hi Marnie!

I have couple questions:

1. I need to include this article in my dissertation as one of my thesis chapters. I believe I need to get permission and this will go as published copy in BRN. How do you advise to go about it.
2. Also when would the copy be available for public access. I received two separate requests to share the PDF and I think I cannot share it with people I do not know? Perhaps, I can tell them when the article will be available for download?

~Thanks, Delia
